SALEM'S RARE DISPLAYS

What Can Be Seen in Holiday Goods.

Some of the Finest Stocks in Oregon Being Shown Every-where.

Salem dry goods stores, clothing stores and racket establishments, book stores and dealers in all lines are displaying with wonderful ability their stocks for the holidays such as would be a credit to larger cities and more pretentious establishments.

Head salesman Jim Foster, assisted by the accomplished lady clerks of the Holverson establishment, has planned and executed some artistic as well as elaborate displays of goods above the long rows of shelves on either side of that large store. It includes everything from a prettily dressed doll in a swing to the substantial and more expensive holiday articles.

Sherm Thompson, who always has a very attractive store, now displays a magnificent stock of gold and silver goods, rings and jewelry, with rubies, pearls, garnets, emeralds, diamonds, etc. He can satisfy the wealthiest as well as the more modest purchasers.

Geo. C. Will, Salem's wide awake musical instrument man, says he can't get enough pianos and organs on account of the strikes, but has a mammoth supply of high grade guitars, violins, mandolins, music and musical supplies. He also has sewing machines that would make many a woman's heart beat for joy as a Christmas present.

O. P. Dabney, the Fair Store man, seems to have direct communications with old Santa Claus himself, and has enough toys to make a world of children happy.

Friedman's New Racket seems to be the same old racket of making the plain people of the world happy with holiday and every day bargains.

Fred A. Legg, of the Steiner Drug Company at the Red Corner, has on display a great supply of holiday novelties, toilet articles, perfume sets, elegant mirrors, brushes, colognes, cameras and camera supplies.

The windows of the Yokahama Tea Co., are a blaze of glory in the way of China ware, glassware and dainty novelties from all parts of the world.

The Salem Shoe store shows windows full of the most elegant goods in their lines.

J. J. Dalrymple & Co., who have the finest corner show window in the city, have a heavy display of their high grade dry goods, the handwork of Rudolf Hopf, the young man who is also responsible for the rare cartoons and window signs.

The Woolen Mill Store windows indicate that Mayor Bishop is headquarters for X-mas novelties, mufflers, silk suspenders, neckwear, silk handkerchiefs, furnishings, and a full line of the famous Salem made blankets that are as fine as silk.

Hobson, the farmers friend, is pushing out lots of the substantial that those people always need.

Wiggins Bazaar are headquarters for a thousand-and-one articles to please great or small. His stock includes fancy work, toilet articles, dolls, toys, games, juvenile books, and the things that go to please the multitude.

G. W. Johnson & Co. have attractive windows of the latest things in men's and boys' clothing and supplies of all kinds. Geo. W.'s genial smile is worth going to see, even if you don't buy a cent's worth.

Damon Bros. are making hundreds of people happy with twenty pounds of sugar for a dollar.

The large room of the New York Racket is packed with goods and people, and it takes a haker's dozen of active people to deal out the purchases of stables, shoes, clothes, furnishings, goods, albums, work boxes and everything that can be thought of to please great and small.

Dan Fry, who has the most elegant store in Salem, displays many X-mas novelties in his drug store.

F. W. Hollis & Co. are busy filling holiday orders for rare things in the furniture and picture line.

Willis Bros., E. F. Osborn, and I Greenbaum at the Roman stand, are closing out bargains in their respective lines.

Chas. H. Hinges, the optician, has one of the nearest little establishments in the city, and as is his custom about the holidays, he has his show case and window displays up to date and attractive. The place is a regular jewel casket, filled with just what the most wide-awake trade want.

There isn't another such a Santa Claus store in Oregon as is displayed in Patton's Bros' store and windows. Old and young congregate there by the scores to "take in" the feast of holidays.

Dr. Stone's two drug stores have some superb Christmas novelties in their line. Dearborn's book store shows two rich windows of the latest attractions in juvenile and grown peoples books.

The Old White Corner is packed these days with men, women and children buyers to size up their magnificent displays of holiday and every day goods. Here it would seem that anything under the sun could be found.

Baren & Hamilton's mammoth show windows show the latest things in furniture and art goods. Some of their big easy chairs seem large enough to accommodate an elephant, and comfortable enough for an invalid. No parlor could be more luxurious than their window room.

Ellis & Zinn's candy factory and retail store is the centre of attraction among the buyers of sweets. Here can be found the most elegant bon bons and the largest amount of pure candy for your money.

In the windows of Barr's jewelry establishment can be seen everything from a quaint "Schwartzwalder" clock to the most modern time pieces. Also the most elegant things in gold and silver ware, as well as precious stones and jewels.

In Henry Sonneam's windows there is displayed an elegant line of china-ware and jumbo parlor lamps, all being closed out.

EUGENIE BLAIR.
In a "Lady of Quality" by Mrs. Burnett Thursday Evening.

The play is filled with intense interest and is staged more magnificently than anything ever attempted by even such a well-known producer of plays as Sir Henry Irving. Miss Blair in selecting the romance of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett has added materially to her success as an emotional actress. The story appeals not to a limited class, but to everybody with a spark of sympathy, and a liking for an interesting story.

There are many reasons for its popularity—its pathetic theme, the charming pictures of city and country life in aristocratic households and striking realism. Its potent element, however, is the strong human interest that penetrates each scene. To this all classes and creeds must yield their sympathy. Miss Blair has surrounded herself with a company of players thoroughly competent to handle the characters assigned to them, sparing neither time nor money to secure the services of the ones best suitable to the parts. All new scenery is used this season making the production even more elaborate than last year.

Salt Lake City—An Important Factor in Transcontinental Travel.
No one crossing the continent can afford to omit Salt Lake City from his route. The attractions of the place, including the Mormon Temple, Tabernacle and Church institutions, the Great Salt Lake—dearer and denser than the Dead Sea in the Holy Land—the picturesque environment and the warm Sulphur and Hot Springs, are just to the square yard than any locality on the American continent.

The Rio Grande Western Railway, connecting on the East with the Denver & Rio Grande and Colorado Springs & Denver, and on the West with the Southern Pacific (Central Route) and Oregon Short Line, is the only transcontinental line passing directly through Salt Lake City. The route through Salt Lake City via the Rio Grande Western Railway is famous all the year round. On account of the equable climate of Utah and Colorado it is just as popular in winter as in summer. See to J. D. Mansfield, 233 Washington St., Portland; or Geo. W. Heints, Acting General Passenger Agent, Salt Lake City, for a copy of "Salt Lake City—the City of the Saints."

The Ordinary Sleeper—A New Feature in Western Travel.
The Pullman Company now operates two grades of sleeping cars via the Rio Grande Western Railway. Uniformed Pullman porters are in charge of the cars, who are required to keep them in good order and attend to the needs and comforts of passengers. The cars are very handsome and commodious, and while not so elegant as just as comfortable as standard of public sleepers. Both first and second
